Men Stand Against Rape by Wearing High Heels

Newport News Sheriff's deputies prove they are man enough by marching in "Walk a Mile in Her Shoes"

The Annual "Walk a Mile in Her Shoes" event will be held Saturday, April 2nd at 11:00 a.m. (registration from 10am-11am) at the Peninsula Town Center in Hampton, VA. The men's march benefits the Center for Sexual Assault Survivors, a non-profit agency serving the Peninsula since 1996.

The Newport News Sheriff's Office has always been a proud participant in the event, and deputies plan to cross city lines and walk again this year. They will be in uniform, footwear being the only exception.

"Sheriff Gabe Morgan has been our biggest supporter," said Shawna Gray, Executive Director for the Center for Sexual Assault Survivors. "This is our fifth year doing this, and he has been onboard from the beginning. He has said that every year the heels are going to get higher."

The Sheriff's heels get higher as the pledges get higher. Last year the event raised $11,000. The money supports the rape crisis center. All their services are free, including a 24-hour crisis hotline and one-on-one counseling.

"This year I have a pair of bright shiny red pumps. I figure red goes with more outfits than pink," joked Sheriff Morgan.

The way to curb the behavior of sexual violence is through education and awareness. This event certainly raises awareness -- and eyebrows. It is a light hearted way to get people involved in a serious matter.
